

The Religion in Mississippi History Research Fellowship

Made possible by a grant through Lilly Endowment's Religion and Cultural Institutions Initiative.

The Religion in Mississippi History Research Fellowship encourages and supports research in the study of Mississippi's religious history and culture at the Mississippi Department of Archives and History. The program seeks to nurture upper-level graduate and doctoral students to increase their life-long interest in history, and to promote continued academic and public appreciation of the study of religious history in Mississippi.

One research fellowship with a stipend of $5,000 will be offered, and the recipient is expected to be in residence for a minimum of two weeks during the summer to conduct research in the archival collections held at the William F. Winter Archives and History Building in Jackson, Mississippi. At the conclusion of their stay, the Religion in Mississippi History Research Fellowship recipient will be asked to give an informal yet professional presentation and submit a summary report on the fellow's research findings.

The stipend may be used to cover travel, accommodations, and other expenses during the recipient's time researching at the archives. (Ineligible costs include computer equipment, hardware, or software; childcare, and photo framing/matting.) The stipend will be paid in increments, with the final payment given upon submission of the summary report.

The Lilly Endowment, Inc. and MDAH will have the opportunity to utilize the product(s) if they are deemed appropriate and of benefit to the sponsoring parties.

Please visit our FAQ page for more information about conducting research in the many archival collections at MDAH using the online catalog and at the William F. Winter Building.
